ARRANGING FOR THE FUNERAL

It Will Take Place in New Orleans Next Wednesday—The War Department at Washington Will Take Notice of Mr. Davis' Death—Scenes at the Dying Man's Bedside.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—This city is in deep mourning over the death of Jefferson Davis. At 6 o'clock Thursday evening, without any assignable cause, Mr. Davis was seized with a congestive chill which seemed to absolutely crush the vitality out of his already enfeebled body. So weak was Mr. Davis that the violence of the assault soon subsided for lack of vitality upon which to prey.

From that moment to the moment of his death the history of his case was that of a gradual sinking. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Davis administered some medicine, but the ex-president declined to receive the whole dose. She urged upon him the necessity of taking the remainder, but putting it aside, with the gentlest of gestures, he whispered: "Pray excuse me."

These were his last words, and a few hours later he died.

At the bedside when the end came were Mrs. Davis, Mr. J. U. Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Judge Charles E. Fenner, Mr. E. H. Farrar, Miss Smith, a grandniece of Mr. Davis, Mr. E. D. Fenner, a son of the justice, Dr. C. J. Bickham and Dr. S. E. Chaille.

There was nothing remarkable about the deathbed scene. The departure of the spirit was gentle and utterly painless. There were no dry eyes in the little assembly about the bed and every heart bled with the anguish which found vent in Mrs. Davis' sobs and cries.

When the family had partially recovered from the terrible shock, Mr. Farrar went to the Western Union telegraph office and sent dispatches to Miss Winnie Davis, who is in Paris with Mrs. Pulitzer, to Mr. Davis' son-in-law in Colorado City, and also notified Governor Lowrey, of Mississippi, as he deemed it but right that the executives of that state should know of the death of one of its most distinguished sons.

A large meeting was held at the city hall yesterday noon, and it was decided to embalm the body of ex-President Davis and have it lie in state until next Wednesday, when the funeral will take place. Preparations are being made on the most elaborate scale, and the funeral will be the grandest demonstration of love and reverence to any American citizen ever held in this city. The governor has already received numerous telegrams from troops from all sections of the south who will be here to participate in the demonstration. Quarters are now being provided for the troops.

Governor Gordon, commandant of the United Confederate Veteran association, has issued a request to all governors of the southern states to make the day of the funeral one of general observance. All the public buildings are draped in mourning, as well as many private residences. All business will be suspended here on the day of the funeral.

The expressions of sorrow among the people is as sincere as it is general. Flags are suspended at half-mast from all the city and state buildings, newspaper offices, banks and insurance companies.

It has been suggested that Governor Nichols issue a proclamation setting apart a day of mourning, and that the people of the city drape their houses with crepe out of respect to the distinguished dead. A number of residences have already been draped.

The supreme court of the state has decided to adjourn on Wednesday next, the day of the funeral. In the civil district court the tribute of respect to the memory of the illustrious dead was spontaneous and heartfelt. The judges met in the chamber and decided that each division should adjourn at once.

At the public meeting in the mayor's office leading citizens spoke, and a committee was appointed to arrange a public funeral.

The body will be taken in charge by the Veteran association of the Washington artillery, and the guard of honor will be in uniform. When the remains reach city hall, Col. Richardson, of the Washington artillery, will take command of the guard of honor, and the body will be placed in the mayor's parlor, where it will lie in state. Bishop Galloher will be requested to conduct the religious ceremonies. It was also decided to invite the entire clergy of the city including all denominations.

At Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 7.—The sorrow for Jefferson Davis' death is universal. It was but Wednesday that a friend received advices from Mrs. Davis, in which she said: "He is better, but very low. 'Tis God that giveth the increase." But I have every hope of final recovery, though of course, expecting a weary convalescence. As for me, to have even this hope is joy."

The whole city is in mourning; public and private buildings are draped. Mr. H. W. Grady has received permission by telegraph from a friend of the family to send a sculptor to take cast of the departed statesman's features. This mask will be made use of in a statue to be erected by the city of Atlanta.

Efforts are making to have the body of Mr. Davis buried in West View cemetery or near the site of some famous battles. Mayor Glenn has ordered the city buildings draped thirty days, and has requested the people to observe the hour of the funeral with appropriate exercises.

No Official Notice at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—No official notice will be taken by the war department concerning the death of Jefferson Davis, who was secretary of war under President Pierce from 1853 to 1857. Secretary Proctor said that he could see no good reason to officially take notice of the event.

Upon the announcement of the death of Jefferson Davis, the Mississippians residing in Washington came together at the Metropolitan hotel and passed resolutions of sympathy, honor and affection, which were telegraphed to Mrs. Davis at New Orleans.

At Savannah, Georgia.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 7.—Flags were put at half mast here on the city hall, the cotton exchange and all the armories on receipt of the news of the death of Jefferson Davis. At noon the city offices were closed for the day by order of Mayor Schwanz. A military delegation with members of the Confederate Veterans' association will go to New Orleans to attend the funeral.

Want Him Buried at Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 7.—A movement is to be made to induce Jefferson Davis' relatives to allow his body to be brought here and interred in the yard of what was the White House of the Confederacy.

In the legislature yesterday a joint committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sorrow of the people of Virginia at the death of Mr. Davis.

Flags at Half Mast.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 7.—Upon receipt of the news of the death of Jefferson Davis National and state flags were displayed at half mast on the public buildings, and the buildings were closed. The bell at city hall was tolled. Governor Fowle sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. Davis.

THE ACCIDENT TO EMIN

Falls Like a Fall Upon the Entire Civilized World.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—In all of the circles whose chief topic of discussion for the last week or more, has been the rescue of Emin by Stanley, and the safe arrival of the two leaders with their followers within the limits of civilization, the news from Zanzibar, Thursday night, of the presumably fatal accident to Emin at Bagamoye fell like a pall. Thousands were inclined to doubt the truth of the report, but could give no reason for believing it otherwise than true, except that their feelings revolted against acceptance of a tale so sad, and their hopes sought the loophole of chance that the dispatches might have been hastily sent and exaggerated the gravity of the pasha's injury.

Close upon the heels of Stanley's letter ascribing the successful march of himself and Emin, as well as his own success in reaching the pasha, to divine guidance, the news of the hard fate of the faithful governor of the last equatorial province ruled by a white man seems like mockery, and his death at this time would cause universal sorrow.

Aside from the general mourning arising from the loss of a man of his personal worth, and the circumstances attending his taking off, the death of Emin would be especially lamentable in that the most valuable testimony concerning his residence in equatorial Africa and his eminent services in the cause of civilization would be lost, and the vast fund of information he acquired at the cost of so much labor and privation rendered nugatory.

Much of the theoretical knowledge regarding Africa has been thrown to the winds by the expedition of Stanley, and a great deal more of it remains to be relegated to the realms of fiction by disclosures which only Emin is capable of making, therefore it is the more strongly to be hoped that his injury is not as serious as it is reported.

The testimony of Father Schinze, of the German African mission, to the magnitude of the undertaking of suppressing slave trading in Africa is rather discrediting to the various societies of committees, associations and the like, whose occupation of late has been confined to the promulgation of arguments designed to show that abolition of the traffic is the easiest thing in the world provided money in sums sufficient to meet their requirements is forthcoming, and the priest's declaration that total suppression of the trade will take centuries of hard work will have a tendency to draw tighter the purse strings of philanthropically inclined capitalists.

Speechless for Ten Hours.

ZANZIBAR, Dec. 7.—Emin Pasha was unable to speak for ten hours after his accident, but has recovered his speech and is now able to converse a little. He hopes to be sufficiently strong to proceed to Zanzibar in ten days.

Emin's Ivory All Gone.

CAIRO, Dec. 7.—The Egyptian government has chartered a British India steamer to convey Emin Pasha's party from Zanzibar to Egypt. All of Emin's ivory was either burned or deposited with native chiefs. Not a single tusk is left.

Americans After Moussa Bey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 7.—A number of American missionaries held a meeting here to consider the course to be pursued in relation to the recent acquittal of Moussa Bey, the Kurdish chief who was charged with robbery and outrage of Christians in Armenia. It was decided to summon from Van two American missionaries who were assaulted by Moussa Bey, and to have them place their evidence before the proper authorities. It is believed that Mr. Hirsch, the American minister, will insist upon Moussa Bey being punished.

Meeting of Coal Miners.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—Delegations of coal miners from Bochum, Gelsenkirchen and Dortmund, Westphalia, assembled at Essen yesterday and decided to submit to a meeting of miners, to be held on Sunday, a resolution providing for a fresh strike with a view to compelling the masters to discontinue the lockout against the men who were prominent in organizing the last strike.

The Murder Described.

State's Evidence Reviewed in the Cronin Trial.

ITS EFFECT ON THE SUSPECTS.

Pale Faces and Glassy Eyes Under the Scathing Speech of Attorney Hynes. Beggs' Attorney Begins His Argument in Behalf of His Client.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Judge McConnell's court room was crowded again yesterday when Mr. Hynes took the floor to finish his address to the jury in the Cronin murder case. Mr. Hynes stated that he would use as little time as possible in presenting his views of the evidence against John F. Beggs and the position taken by Mr. Foster, Beggs' counsel, with regard to this evidence.

Attorney Hynes argued that Mr. Beggs' position was not that of a man who desired peace and harmony in the order, as would be maintained by Mr. Foster. "Not only did Beggs deprecate contention," said the attorney, "but he said he would have peace, if it took war to bring it about. Beggs defended the triangle, and said that Alexander Sullivan, one of the triangle, had friends in the place, and that he was one of them. He denounced the men who were opening old sores."

Mr. Hynes then referred to Beggs' letter to Spellman Feb. 16, in which Beggs asked that a penalty be inflicted on the men who were making dissension in the order. "He advised something to be done," said Mr. Hynes, "because he could not tell what trouble might come of it."

"What was the trouble?" continued the attorney. "Who was it that whispered into Beggs' ear that there would be trouble? Was it Dan Coughlin, who, later on, told a man that information had been received that one of the spies alluded to by Le Caron, was here, and the indications are that Dr. Cronin is the man, or was it that the plot had already been inaugurated?"

"The innermost workings of infamous conspiracy," said the attorney, "some of the members of which had been induced to mistake savagery for patriotism would never be wholly revealed until some putrid conscience should show them forthwith phosphorescent light in the shadow of the gallows."

The claim that Dr. Cronin was killed because he was a British spy was knocked out with one blow. "Were such a claim true," the eloquent attorney cried, "the murderers would have been sent across the ocean to put to death Le Caron."

The alibi of the white horse was disposed of by Mr. Hynes citing the contradiction in the testimony of Budenender, and then the inconsistencies of the driver of the white horse, with the actions of an innocent man, were discussed. The idea that Smith hired a horse way up on the North Side to take out riding an aunt living way down at the stock yards, and making the trip in two hours and a half, was absurd. The driver with heavy overcoat on, and the collar turned up, on such a warm evening as the 4th of last May, and his desire for side curtains on the buggy, together with a request for a dark horse, was also commented on.

Hynes referred to the O'Sullivan contract with Dr. Cronin and said the reason the man who called for the doctor presented O'Sullivan's card was because he had been coached by O'Sullivan. After riddling the testimony of Detective Crow and disposing of the few remaining details in the ease presented by the defense, Attorney Hynes reviewed the state's evidence. The only trace of the doctor's destination on May 5 was O'Sullivan's card. A visit to the iceman brought from him that he had not sent for the doctor, but that a contract existed between them.

With a magnificent burst of oratory the speaker then pictured the doctor's visit to the cottage, his entering the door, his heart throbbing with anticipated relief of suffering and the horrible slaughter immediately followed. The effect was noticeable upon the defendants. Their faces were pale and their eyes had a peculiar glassy stare.

The other prominent parts of the testimony presented by the state were handled with masterly skill and new points brought out from evidence already gone over. There was frequently a buzz of suppressed enthusiastic applause from the audience. When the attorney finally finished he was surrounded by friends with warm congratulations.

Court adjourned for lunch.

At the afternoon session Attorney Foster began his argument in behalf of his client, Beggs. He said that whoever believed Dr. Cronin was an angel in disguise was mistaken. It had been charged that the Clan-na-Gael society was a dynamite organization, but the fact that Dr. Cronin was an active member of the society had been unthinkingly overlooked. This brought the state's attorney to his feet with a jump.

"I shall object to the charge that Dr. Cronin was a dynamiter. He was opposed to the dynamite policy, and for opposing it was expelled."

This disconcerted Mr. Foster, and for a few moments he, the state's attorney and the court all talked together. At last order was restored, and the court ruled the statement out, on the ground that no such testimony had been admitted.

The attorney then referred to Beggs' connection with the Clan-na-Gael. His client's connection with the society, he said, was an open book. He was champion of peace. The statement that Beggs had at one time said that Dr. Cronin was not a fit man to be on the committee that tried Alexander Sullivan might be true. What of it? Had not Dr. Cronin in a convention of the National body charged Sullivan, Boland and Feely with robbery and murder? Such being the case, was it unreasonable to believe that anyone making such a charge would be unfit to try and judge the ones accused.

"And that statement," continued the attorney, "is the only one that my client Beggs has been accused in evidence of making. None other has ever made. In making that statement he did right. If you are going to hang him for that statement I might as well stop here and let him be taken at once to the narrow passage in the jail and strangled. The state desires to convict my client because Burke went to his office three times—twice in January and once in February. Let the gentlemen for the state

TATE'S BONDSTEN.

Their Liability for the Defalcation of the Absconding Treasurer Being Tested in Court.

In the Court of Appeals Thursday the case of the Commonwealth against James W. Tate and others was argued by General D. W. Lindsay for defendants, and Judge Hines for plaintiff. Yesterday Judge William Lindsay spoke for the sureties and Attorney General Hardin for the State. Other arguments are yet to be made, but a decision will likely be rendered within a few days.

The suits are to determine the liability of the bondsmen of the defaulting Treasurer for the term from January, 1882, to January, 1884. The Commonwealth is represented by Attorney General P. W. Hardin and ex-Chief Justice Thomas H. Hines, and the bondsmen by ex-Chief Justice William Lindsay, General Dan W. Lindsay, ex-Chief Justice Alvin Duval, Colonel Phil B. Thompson, John W. Rodman, Frank Chinn and W. A. Sudduth. The claim against the bondsmen amounts to $63,000.

The chief point of defense is that the securities were induced to sign the Treasurer's bond by the State's representation that his accounts were correct at the end of each term, when he was in reality, at the end of each term a defaulter. They rely upon the failure of the Legislature to make the thorough investigation required by the Constitution at the several sessions held during the twenty years' service of the Treasurer.

The State claims that the bond for this period was executed before the examination made by the Auditor and Secretary of State and before any quietus could have been given the Treasurer; and, further, that the failure of any agents of the State to do their duty can not affect the liability of a bondsmen.

Railway News.

The Kentucky Central has ordered five new engines. They will be made at the Schenectady Locomotive Works, and will be placed on the road about February 1st. They are four large freight engines and a yard engine.

The railroads of the United States have invested in cars $560,000,000, and there are in actual use 1,005,700 cars. If these cars could travel an average of twenty-five miles per day they would take care of themselves and pay 4 per cent. on the investment. The object of the car service bureau is to keep these cars constantly on the move.

The Chesapeake and Ohio, through Mr. Collins P. Huntington, Thursday served official notification upon the Louisville and Nashville people, that beginning January 1 it would cease running into Louisville from Lexington over the L. and N., but would use the Louisville Southern tracks and facilities for that purpose.

The Continental line has established a special freight service between New York and Louisville both coming and going, the trains being run on regular passenger time. This special service will put freight from New York into Louisville in three days, the time heretofore being from six to eight days. Ficklin Brothers are agents of the Continental in this city, and get the advantage of the above service.

A Whittling Genius.

The Lexington Transcript says: "Mr. C. W. Lurtey, night clerk at the Ashland Hotel, may be truly termed a genius in whittling. He pursues it as an inventor pursues an object. His purpose is to make something, and he succeeds. One of his inventions is a puzzle in the shape of a railroad Y, with several trains. The object is to switch the trains so as to get them into a certain position. Another invention is a match safe that is a great puzzle for one who does not know how to open it. His latest execution is a six inch glass bottle, in which he has erected a cross, with a figure of Christ swung upon it. A ladder stands against the cross, and upon the cross piece lies a hammer and pincers. All this was put in the bottle, through the small neck, and set up. It is a skillful piece of work, and but few persons could accomplish the job."

CONGRESSMAN DALZELL's assertion, a few days ago, that "our commerce has prospered under the protective tariff," isn't borne out by the facts. The Detroit Free Press remarks in this connection that "a good Republican who has been abroad eighteen months, visiting all the sea ports, says he saw the stars and stripes floating from masts three times, once on a man-of-war and twice on private yachts of chaps who have been protected into millions at the expense of the masses. Oh, yes, 'our commerce has prospered.'

LOOKING FOR HER HUSBAND.

Where Is David Silvereys Colgenous Colgan? Mrs. Colgan Anxious to Locate Him.

Where is David Silvereys Colgenous Colgan?

Information of his whereabouts will be gratefully received by his wife, Mrs. Mary Colgan. Her home is near Ellberry, five miles back of Aberdeen.

Mrs. Colgan was in town yesterday and sought the BULLETIN'S advice as to the best plan of locating her unfaithful spouse. She was advised to place the case in the hands of Detective Heflin.

Four years ago her name was changed from Mary Scott to Mary Colgan. Her David Silvereys Colgenous was eighteen years old when the nuptial knot was tied.

On that "dark day" in November a year or so ago he left her. She says she will never forget that "dark day." Time passed until about four or five weeks since, when she claims he "stole a girl from her home in Higginsport and took the night train for a 'new country,'"

This giddy girl who was stolen away by David Silvereys Colgenous, Mrs. Colgan says, is known as Annie Glaze. The present whereabouts of the unfaithful spouse and Annie are not known, but it is thought they are basking in each other's smiles somewhere in the wild West, as that seems to be the particular section referred to by Mrs. Colgan as the "new country."

The wronged wife seemed undecided as to whether she would take her wayward Colgenous back to her heart and home (if the detective succeeds in locating him), or whether she would have him sent to the penitentiary. It is very likely she would "mercy show," as she intimated several times that she is perfectly willing to live with him if he will come back." An elderly lady who was with the wronged wife declared if she was Mrs. Colgan she would put Colgenous "where the dogs couldn't bite him."

THE GRETNNA GREEN.

Captain J. C. Powers Sells His Ferry and Ferry Privileges to Messrs. Goble and Savage.

The Maysville and Aberdeen ferryboat Gretna Green was sold yesterday. The purchasers are Mr. M. V. Goble, of Catiettburg, and Mr. Frank M. Savage, of Covington. While the terms are private, it is learned from a perfectly reliable source that the price paid was $15,000.

Negotiations for the sale of the boat had been in progress several days. On Thursday, Mr. Savage arrived here and was met that night by Mr. McGuire, who acted for Mr. Goble. The contract was closed yesterday. The ferry privileges at this place and Aberdeen are included in the sale.

Mr. Goble is a prominent lumber merchant of Catiettburg, while Mr. Savage is engaged in business at Cincinnati. The latter is a brother of Judge Sam Savage, of Ashland. They bought the ferry as an investment, being satisfied there is money in it for them at the figure paid.

It is not their intention to take charge of the boat in person, but they will engage some competent and experienced party to run it for them. The arrangements to this end are not yet completed, and Mr. Savage did not know late yesterday afternoon who would be selected to take command.

The transfer of the boat has not yet been made, nor had it been settled yesterday afternoon when the new owners are to take possession.

IN the United States District Court at Covington Thursday, a judgement was rendered in favor of David Sinton, the Cincinnati capitalist, against Carter County, Ky., for $46,000. Carter issued bonds to aid the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, in 1823. The road was not built, and the purchasers of the bonds sued on them. In 1878 a compromise was had between the county and the stockholders, and new bonds were issued in place of the old ones. The county failed to pay these also. It was on these bonds that Mr. Sinton sued and got judgement.

A DUEL WITH SWORDS.

Rival Lovers at Pomona, Cal., Settle their Troubles With Rapier.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—A Tribune special from Pomona, Cal., says: A duel was fought near this city, Tuesday evening, in strict accordance with the code. The affair was kept secret, but notwithstanding the care exercised to keep it from the public, the facts came out.

Since October last two young men from Pomona, Harry Lucas, formerly of Louisiana, and Herbert Priestly, both aged 19, have been rivals for the hand of a young lady of excellent family. They have had frequent quarrels, and recently came to blows. Finally Lucas challenged Priestly to fight with Spanish rapiers.

The challenge was accepted and the two men met in the ball grounds. Lucas, who is both wiry and quick, and a practiced fencer, was quickly seen to be the better of the two. The arrangements were for three-minute bouts. At the end of the second bout, when Priestly had been cut in the breast and head, twice in the shoulder, the seconds became alarmed and stopped the fight.

Priestly's wounds were dressed and he was taken away from town. Lucas has also disappeared. The seconds are here and known, but no arrests have been made. The young men are of good families and the story of the fight has caused much excitement here.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

A Conductor's Body Torn to Pieces and a Fireman Also Killed in a Collision.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Dec. 7.—A collision between two freight trains on the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City railroad occurred last night at Durango, nine miles from this city. Conductor Berry, of the local train, and Fireman John Hickey, of the through freight, were instantly killed, Berry's body being scattered in fragments in the wrecked cars and on the track.

Several others were injured, but none seriously. An engine and seven loaded cars were totally wrecked. The fault appears to lie with Brakeman Hall, of No. 62, who threw the switch before the train had time to get on the side-track. He claimed that Conductor Berry was drunk and gave the signal, but this charge is indignantly denied by the other train men. Hall had to flee for his life to avoid being lynched for making the claim. Berry lived in St. Paul, and Hickey in Dubuque.

A NEIGHBOR'S REVENGE.

He Puts Arsenic in Pork, and Poisons Five Persons.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 7.—In Henry county George Brown and his family, consisting of a wife and three children, were poisoned with arsenic. The children are dead, Mrs. Brown will die, and Brown's condition is critical.

Several weeks ago Brown had a difficulty with Carter Irwin, but they became reconciled and appeared to be friendly again. Three days ago Irwin went to Brown's house, and while in the kitchen stirred a pot of pork boiling on the stove. Nothing was thought of the action, but soon after eating the pork at dinner the family became violently ill. The pork was examined, and traces of arsenic were found in it. Irwin fled, and is still at large.

SOMETHING MUST BE WRONG.

Only Four Hundred People Killed in China This Time.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—The steamer China brings advices from Hong Kong to Nov. 13, and from Yokohama to Nov. 22.

The Chinese troops suffered a severe defeat from the savages in South Formosa, 300 or 400 of them having been killed.

Recently a mob attacked the China Inland and Methodist Episcopal missions at Nan-Kang, and destroyed both chapels and an opium refuge and stoned the officials who attempted to interfere. The missionaries and ladies took refuge in the Yamen.

The United States flagship Omaha, returned to Yokohama from Corea, Nov. 21. Custom house branches have been opened at Karatsu, Hakata, Kirchinotsu and Fushiki, four of the newly created special ports of exportation in Japan.

SHOT DEAD.

A Woman Who Knew How to Defend Herself.

ARROW ROCK, Mo., Dec. 7.—James Welch, a farmer, living a mile south of this place, went to Booneville Thursday and was compelled to remain over night. Mrs. Welch was aroused about 11 o'clock that night by hearing some one at the door. She called out to know who was there, but the intruder made a strong effort and burst the door from its hinges.

Mrs. Welch immediately fired at the man, who fell dead on the threshold. He was a worthless negro, who had learned of Mr. Welch's absence, and evidently thought he would take advantage of it. Mrs. Welch is completely prostrated by the tragedy, but has the sympathy of the entire neighborhood for her heroic deed.

The President Westward Bound.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 7.—A telegram has been received from Private Secretary Halford saying that President Harrison will reach Indianapolis this afternoon. He will come over the Pennsylvania lines, and will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson, Mrs. Wanamaker and Mr. Halford. The party will remain in Indianapolis over Sunday, and will probably be the guests of R. S. McKee. It is the president's desire to have the trip a quiet one. From Indianapolis the president goes to Chicago to attend the opening of the auditorium.

Attempted to Murder His Companion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 7.—Joseph Seipe, a young Syrian peddler, was found in a dying condition by a farmer near the city yesterday morning. He said George Sheeler, also a Syrian, had attempted to murder him for his money, and had set fire to the haystack under which they were sleeping. He claims that Sheeler took $140 in money. Sheeler was found in the city with the packs of both. He had four bullets lodged in his head, but no serious wound. He claimed that they had been assaulted by tramps. He is under arrest.
